Traversing the Two Halves of Life

A Courage to Lead® Retreat

In the first half of life, we are naturally and rightly preoccupied with establishing our identity – climbing, achieving and performing. But those concerns will not serve us as we grow older. Eventually, we need to see ourselves in a different and more life-giving way.

Through the wisdom from time-honored myths, heroic poems, great thinkers, and sacred religious texts, we can be taken on a journey to give us an understanding of how the heartbreaks, disappointments, and first loves of life are actually stepping stones to the spiritual joys that the second half of life has in store for us. (Richard Rohr)

Those of us engaged in organisational leadership, professional or voluntary community service and social change know the challenge of sustaining ourselves and our commitment to act from deeply held values amid the complexity of our roles. The more passionate we are about our work, the more vital it is we take time to renew our own spirits and hearts.

One cannot live in the afternoon of life according to the program of life's morning; for what was great in the morning will be of little importance in the evening, and what in the morning was true will at evening become a lie (Carl Jung)
